Matsuri 2009: Sunday, March 29, 2009

The Japan America Society of Vermont (JASV) and St. Michaels College are presenting Matsuri 2009, a Festival of Japan, on Sunday, March 29, 11 am until 5 pm at the Ross Sports Center, St. Michael's College, Colchester, Vermont.

Over two dozen booths and 50 tables will provide opportunities for festival attendees to get hands-on experience with Japanese arts and crafts. Visitors can try on a kimono, participate in a tea ceremony, sample and discuss haiku and tanka poetry, learn to write their own name in katakana characters, fold a paper crane, and produce a "rubbed fish" painting. Or they can dance away the afternoon at a "dance revolution" game booth highlighting Japanese pop culture. Local artisans will be hosting displays of bonsai plants, flower arrangements, pottery and other crafts. Several book stores and shops will be selling omiyage souvenirs.

The Opening Ceremony will feature a performance by Burlington Taiko and opening remarks by The Consul-General of Japan in Boston Masaru Tsuji, St. Michael's College President John J. Neuhauser and Larry Solt, President of JASV.

The Matsuri Stage area features a broad assortment of entertainment, including several martial arts demonstrations, a noodle eating contest, dance, and koto music. Again this year will be a Gundam Performance by students from Essex High School as well as a special folk song performance. The off-stage show will include children's activities, such as story telling, origami, Japanese traditional games and toys, good for ages 5-10, and Dance Revolution for teens and college age.
